Prologue

Friends, lovers, Tennesseans, lend us your ears:
Our mission here truly is to please you.
We have heard the evil that men do
Lives after them,
The good is oft interred with their bones—
But let it not be so with us!
We are ambitious—That we would not deny,
But our ambition is of that stern stuff
Out of which noble and honorable things are fashioned.
You are our friends, faithful and dear to us,
So into your hands we put this our Cadmea.

Pilgrims of Light

We pilgrims on a journey are Seeking knowledge wise;

We've travelled over bumps and ruts
To find the hidden prize.

We've found the dust, the knocks, the thorns,
As well as roses fair;

We've laughed, we've played, we've studied, too;
And shouldered well our care.

We forward press on eager feet,
The journey's end in sight;
Our knowledge-torches gleam and glow,
Send out a radiant light.

In breathless awe we stand upon
Life's threshold wide and bright,
Arrayed in stately caps and gowns
Clasping the parchment tight.

Our feet now urge us to make haste,
The blazing torch points on;
The passport-scroll within our clasp,
Leads to a glorious dawn.

But yet our restless feet we stay,
For still a little while,
To make a book and on its leaves,
Sweet memories to file.

PARENT-TEACHERS' DEDICATION PICTURE

To Dear Old

Built into your heart, as surely as stone,
As firmly entrenched as your own sturdy beams,
Are honor, and love, and respect—service won—
And a place in your children's fond dreams,
A dignity rests in your honest design,
A strength marks your great, rugged walls
And friendships, and lives of the children of men
Have endeared you, have hallowed your halls.

Tennessee High

Your field has been blest with your athletes' best,
Your banner, unsmirched, have they borne,
Your honor they carried untainted, and clean,
And proudly your seal have we worn.
Your doors have been marked by the thousands of feet,
And proudly may you wear these scars,
And it has been your own hand that has given the key
Which the door of the future unbars.

JOSEPH YOAKLEY TALBERT

*President of the Senior Class

1909—1929

TO JOE

The sun did shine so bright that all the world
Seemed happiness—flowers bloomed,
And smiles in abundance grew.
Then came that season of the year
Wherein men's hearts grow rich in thanks
To Him above Who gives to us.
Then we gave—gave more than thanks,
Gave you, dearest treasure of our hearts,
Gave you, our gift to God.
And so you left us on that dreary morn,
And as you went, something in me
Seemed then to break and go with you,
As tho' I possessed something so dear to you
As you, my brother, were to me,
And you, leaving, claimed it.
The Reaper of Men won you with a struggle;
It seemed that God was on one side drawing you
To Him, and earthly love, close kin to the Divine,
Fought opposite to hold you here.
As we laid your body to rest a beam
Of blinding brightness stole from those wall-like clouds,
Like in days of old, to bear you gently up,
Where now you sit in glory with our God.

—Irvin.

The Memory Cloth

We have come to the end of the thread
Which has woven this cloth of ours;
Every stitch is taken; the loom is filled;
The clock has ticked off the hours.

Four years ago 'twas an empty loom,
A shuttle, some tangled thread—
Now we have a part of our lives
Woven into this cloth instead.

Our first stitches—falt'ring and unsure,
Hold mem'ries of a start well made;
Of deeds on which we may look with pride,
As they move like a stately parade.

Our work is finished—we can weave no more;
Now we must tie fast the thread,
Lest something steal our memories,
Or time ever render them dead.

Day fades, night falls, but after night
Always there comes the dawn,
And a new day that is brighter still,
So on, my comrades, on!

As we weave the cloth of life
May each of us do it well;
And in our hearts forever may
Love of our memory cloth dwell.

Class History

Close to two hundred years ago in merry England a gentleman, Robert Walpole by name, leaned back in his chair, bit off the end of an Old Virginia Cheroot, and then remarked with a sarcastic grin: "Give me anything but history, for history must be false." And so, my friends, if you do not place your faith in what I say here, I at least will have the satisfaction of proving that Walpole was right. I am not going to give you a long list of great things which the class of '30 has done for Tennessee High, for if the things we have done cannot be remembered without our calling your attention to them, then they truly must not be very great. So in the future we hope the Class of '30 will be remembered as one who left without patting herself on the back.

If in writing this history of the class I had accurate knowledge of all the little incidents which have happened within the walls of our Alma Mater, and, coupled with this knowledge, the courage to relate the incidents, you would indeed be surprised, and I'd more than likely die an early death at the hands of my classmates. If I only told you about the things I. J. Poore has done, I'd be in trouble's cauldron for months. I can't even tell you about the time "Dizzy's" girl learned there were fourteen other girls equally as ambitious as she, and how she was transformed into a modern Niobe. My courage fails me when I think of telling about Jimmy Booher's receiving an offer from Hollywood to bring his spouse out and the two of them be doubles for John Gilbert and Greta Garbo. So, you see, my lack of courage will mean your lack of facts. Let us proceed:

Turning back the pages of history, we find that in the year 1909, little "Pedro" Wilson's cheery smile first greeted the eyes of his fond parents. His birth was marked—for was he not the first of the famous '30 Class to see the light of day? I pause here to state that Pete's much-used head was also bald at that time, making us believe that he has started a back-to-infancy movement. About the time when little Pete was ready to lay aside his rattler for a cap-pistol, Tom Kuhnert came bouncing in, bringing a climax to our births and a groan from Father Time. Some of you think that the historian has already begun lying, for I heard someone say that he knew Tom was born as late as 1918. Judging from his actions—but that would be telling.

The years held fast to their age-old custom of rolling by, and we fled from the days of rompers and other infants' apparel to enter the stage of learning. Learning what? Again, I say, you'd be surprised! Elsie Davis and Allene Peters had already begun showing the boys why men are called the wronger sex, and Carl Emmert had won the marble championship by a walk-away. During this grammar school period "Whispie" Rosser received some excellent training in the fine art of whispering, and Dorothy Knott was selected as the class quartet.

(THE CADMEA)

Excelsior! Time passed on and those days were gone, never to return again. Now we were in High School, and the rest of our journey shall be likened unto a prize fight. Our first year was spent in the Sub-Freshman or dumber-than-the-rest stage. We fell victims to the "shower-bath committee," but this getting all wet didn't seem to change Bob Hawley's condition in the least. At the end of May the bell sounded, ending Round One.

After fighting mosquitoes for three long, hot summer months, we stepped into the ring again and fell into a clinch with books, pencils, teachers, principals, and what have you? This time the label, FRESHMEN, dangled from our necks, and everything about us was certainly fresh with the possible exception of Bill Russel's wisecracks and Frances Wright's line. January, February, March, April, May, Clang! Clang! and Round Two ended, leaving us a bit groggy and bewildered.

June, July, August, Clang! Clang! Round Three! We rushed from our corners with a grim smile of determination to win that fight or die. By virtue of some strange turn of fate we didn't die, but survived another year of torture, tears, laughter and smiles.

And then, to break the monotony, Summer came and went. Round Four began as we slowly crept back into the old building with blood in our eyes and rarin' to go. During this, our Junior Year, several of our number chose the roles they were to play in the last two years. "Droopy" Hagy suddenly came to life and began breaking feminine hearts by the dozen, and this made him our unanimous choice for class lover. This was before the awakening of "Dizzy" Poore. Close on the heels of this "Sonny" Jones invented an automatic paper-wad slinger, to place him in the ranks of such inventors as Thomas Edison, Eli Whitney, and Tom Carr. Carl McClellan, having seen John Robinson's Circus, was strongly influenced in his choice of a role by a group of chattering anthropoids which fascinated him. Dick Babb, the "Blushing Bare-of-Tone," won fame as the class songbird. As the bell ended this round we felt as though we had come very close to winning by a knockout.

We entered for Round Five, feeling revived and ready for more action. Those same old problems which have ever confronted the Seniors came before us—caps, gowns, rings, elections, pictures, and, incidentally, studies. Now we have come to the end of our high school days. The fight is finished and you wish to know who has won, and some may wish to know why we have fought. To explain it is to say that we have been fighting to better ourselves in all respects, and even now we know not that we have won. However, we hope that we may continue this fight till the end, and then may we stand before the Divine Throne awaiting the decision of the Referee Whose power it is to judge all mortal battles.

—IRVIN TALBERT, Historian.

Last Will and Testament

We, the members of the Senior Class of Tennessee High School, City of Bristol, State of Tennessee, being of sound mind and body, but knowing the uncertainty of tests and examinations, in order to form an everlasting remembrance of us and ours, to leave our personal belongings and accomplishments to those in need; to provide for the common interest; to promote school welfare and to bestow with tender love and sympathy our blessings upon the lower classmen who have yet the chance to become something in life, do ordain and witness this Last Will and Testament of the Senior Class of 1930.

First: To the Sophomores, Freshmen and Sub-Freshmen we will our agility to finally succeed in scaling this majestic hill of learning.

Second: To the Juniors we leave our seats in Chapel, hoping that they will profit by the experience of seeing how an exalted Senior acts in the presence of persons of the lower orders.

Third: We leave to Mr. Tyler a plan for working out schedules which will never have to be changed.

Fourth: Dorothea Knott wills her methods of reducing to Annis Morison. "Dizzy" Poore wills his winning ways with the women to Bob Coleman and John Heninger. Morris Simon and Carrol Brown leave everything that they cannot take with them. Billie Kensinger wills to the two Allens, Judith and June, her past love affairs and any old love letters that may be found. Carl Emmert leaves to Mary Keesling the deep and overwhelming sorrow of having to pursue the thorny path to intelligence without him. Jimmy and Embree will their love affair to Con Torbett and Virginia Carr. George Davis and Albert Hagy, leave, not without a great deal of reluctance, their places as lunch room cashiers to Tom Wade and James Smalling. Elsie Davis leaves to Mary Dean Allen her ability "to make" the male members of the faculty. (There is method in madness.) Richard Babb bequeaths unto James Smalling, the ability to blush at the critical moment. Dorothy Fletcher leaves unto the successor of Sidney Smith her Senior Class picture. Joe Cobb, June Gammon, Juanita Sparger, Myrtle Swinney, and Francis Quales will the gift of gab to Billie McConnell. Laura Mae Shoemaker and Sam Grey leave their title as the Silent Lovers to

(THE CADMEA)

Virginia Love and any eligible young man she may decide on. Lora Sparger leaves to "Red" Sparger the task of keeping the Sparger name within the halls of Tennessee High. Francis Wright bequeaths Don Phipps to the care of the god of loneliness. Nelle Owens wills to Louise Andrews her ability to make anything on the basket-ball court from goals to referees. Gilbert Fields and Frank Jones leave their scientific minds to David Grey. To Alberta Baumgardner, Rozelle Hagan leaves the task of attracting the boys to the suburbs. Robert Hawley wills to Miss Lynn, his ears to use as fans in the hot spring months. Louise Hicks and Helen Snapp, the dancing twins, leave their "it" to Alma Lee Martin. Alfred Kinney bequeaths his speeches and poses on the stage to Lon Chaney. Carl McClellan wills to Billy Barker the duty of "cracking up" punk assembly programs. Lucy O'dell leaves her pen skill to O. O. McIntyre and Irvin S. Cobb. Irvin Talbert entrusts the care of Ruth Powers, for the forthcoming year, to Tom Torbett. Allene Peters leaves her wistful expressions and yearnings for a Kaysee boy to Nancy Peoples. Arnold Poe bequeaths his basket-ball ability to Charlie Phipps. John Rosser wills to Herman Smith the duty of whispering sweet nothings of love into the ear of some sweet maid. Bill Russell bequeaths his ability to imitate Al Jolson in singing "Sonny Boy" to Leonidas Whitten.

Sworn and subscribed before me this 20th day of February in the year of our Lord nineteen hundred and thirty.

Class Prophecy

DEAR DIARY:

June 1, 1940.

I'm so excited that I can hardly write! The queerest things have happened tonight. The day of miracles is not past—for one has just taken place, and I'm going to tell you all about it.

It is one of those gloomy nights—rainy and cold, when everything seems dreary. I was feeling rather sad—you see, my book came back today, marked "UNACCEPTED" as usual—so I began to play solitaire. The first game went pretty well, but when I started the second, strange things began to happen.

I turned up an ace of hearts, but the face of the card was blurred, and soon it had changed to the face of—just guess who! "Dizzy" Poore! And under the picture appeared the words, "Movieland's Latest Sensation—'Dizzy' Poore, acclaimed a second John Gilbert."

The next card was the eight of diamonds, and it bore the smiling countenance of Nelle Owens, and it was inscribed: "Physical Education Director at Vassar." The two of spades proved to be none other than Richard Babb, described as "Editor of the 'College Styles' Column in the Bristol Herald Courier."

The next card I drew was an ace of something—I couldn't tell what suit, because the spots were faint and blurred, but the face shown brilliantly—it was John Rosser; the inscription was: "Famous Ace Who Has Just Captured the Endurance Flight Record." At last John is "up in the air" for a real purpose!

The next two cards were stuck together, but I could understand this when I gazed upon the familiar faces of "Stumpy" Steppe and Elsie Davis, and the joint inscription was: "Noted Actresses Now Appearing in a Revival of 'Uncle Tom's Cabin' as Topsy and Little Eva, Respectively."

Then I saw the smiling countenance of Joe Cobbs, and beneath it the legend: "President of the American Television Corporation." Carl McClellan proved to be "Salesman for the Eskimo Radio Company, whose slogan is 'A Radio in Every Igloo.'"

The next time I drew a card, two came off the deck together, and the result of the combination was astounding. I beheld the face of Maude Kinkead, "Famous Artist Who Draws the Collar Ads," and her model, George Davis.

The face on the next card was not clear at first, but the inscription was: "Editor of the 'Advice to the Lovelorn' Column of the New York Times." The face, I decided, was that of Frances Wright.

When I drew the next card I saw a face which I recognized immediately—Dorothea Knott, "Well-Known Surgeon Who Has Just Been Appointed Head of Johns-Hopkins Hospital in Baltimore."

I took another card from the deck, and was rewarded by the smile of Robbins Wampler, "Instructor in Mathematics at Duke University."

Then, in rapid succession, I saw J. W. Jones, "A Famous Arctic Explorer;" Arnold Poe, "Basket-ball Coach at the University of California," and Thelma White, who proved to be "Social Secretary to a Well-Known Screen Star."

Diary, when I turned up the next card I laughed until my sides ached, for it was none other than "Sonny" Jones, and the inscription was "Second Ukelele Ike." I simply couldn't imagine it.

Next I saw a very familiar face—Edna Crumley, and the card bore the inscription: "Instructor in Music at Sullins College." It seems that Billie Kensinger has taken up the study of insects, for she has just published a book entitled "How I Care for My Gnat."

(THE CADMEA)

The next card really surprised me, for I saw "Turtle" Talbert, "Radio Announcer at WOPI." It seems that "Turtle's" programs are featuring Bill Russell and Carl Emmert, whom radio fans acclaim "The Second Amos and Andy."

I drew another card, and it was Mabel Stockton, who, it seems, is "A Kindergarten Teacher in the Public Schools in Detroit."

Then I saw a face that was very familiar—that of the "Prima-donna in 'Madame Butterfly,' now appearing at the Metropolitan Opera House"—and it was none other than Gladys Crumley.

The next card bore the face of Alfred Kinney, and the inscription was "Congressman Kinney, Who Has Just Been Appointed Chairman of a Special Committee to Consider the Proposed World Peace League Plan."

The next card I drew proved to be Frances Quales, and the legend was "Radio Speaker Who Is Giving a Series of Lectures on the Subject, 'Why Red Hair Does Not Necessarily Indicate a Violent Temper'."

I laughed when I looked at the next card, for it was Emily Dykes, described as "A Noted Organist, Who, However, Is Not Appearing This Week Because the Monkey is Sick." In fact, I got so excited that I dropped the next three cards. They were Gilbert Fields, "Famous Architect, Who Has Just Completed the Plans for Bristol's New Skyscraper, Which Will Be Higher Than the Woolworth Building;" Lucy O'Dell, "Famous Author," and Alyne Finley, "Newly Elected President of the National Society of Cheerleaders."

I drew another card, and the writing seemed to be rather hazy, but I finally interpreted it as "Originator of a System of Simplified Spelling and Writing, in Which Letters and Words Are Not Actually Formed." The face was that of Morris Simon. I wonder if he used his system in high school—if so, we misjudged him—we just didn't know the key.

The back on the next card was queer—it looked like part of a building, but it was only part. I looked at the next card, and it matched the first. The third card completed the picture, which was a handsome building. Underneath were the words, "Lakeside Academy for Girls." Upon turning the cards over I found the officials of the organization to be Lora Sparger, Myrtle Swinney and Juanita Sparger.

I drew a card from the deck, and when I examined it, I found it to be Evelyn Earle, and it was inscribed, "The Interior Decorator Who Has Been Selected to Redecorate the White House."

Bob Hawley, whose face adorned the next card, was described as "Owner of The United Drug Company, Incorporated, a Chain of Drug Stores Which Extends from Coast to Coast."

I drew another card, which proved to be Mary Wassom, and it was inscribed, "Author of the Successful Book, 'The Charm of Bashfulness'." Allene Peters, according to the next card, is now "A Famous Beauty Specialist, Who Has Just Perfected a Process by Which One May Have a New Face Every Day."

The next two cards seemed to want to go together, but when I picked them up, one of them fell back to the table. This seemed very strange, especially when I saw that one of them was Jimmy Booher, "A Broadway Sensation," and the other was Embree Slack, "One of Bristol's Charming Younger Matrons."

Next I gazed upon the familiar face of Louise Peters, and the inscription was: "Famous Designer, Whose Collection of Summer Styles is Considered Paris' Best." Then I drew another card, and this proved to be Julia Treadwell, "Proprietor of the Dew Drop Inn, a Very Successful Tea Room."

I drew another card, and upon it I saw the face of none other than Tom Kuhnert, and the inscription surprised me, for it was: "Inventor of the New

(THE CADMEA)

Gasless Motor Vehicles, which Operate Upon the Power Supplied by Hot Air from the Front Seat." Diary, I bet Tom is the most successful operator of these gasless cars!

Again I found two cards stuck together. This time I saw the pictures of Louise Hicks and Helen Snapp, and the joint inscription was "The Harmony Twins, Now Appearing On Broadway with Paul English's Shows."

There were only four cards left now, so I slowly drew one of them. It proved to be Laura Mae Shoemaker, described as "The Famous Lecturer on Domestic Troubles, Who Has Just Delivered a Splendid Lecture to the Federated Clubs of America on 'How to Hold Your Husband's Love'."

The next card presented the charming smile of Carrol Brown, and bore the inscription, "Second Sherlock Holmes, Who Has Just Solved the Baffling Cuckoo Murder Case."

The last two cards were, of course, Albert Hagy and Rozelle Hagan. From the comments on the cards I learned that they had just published a very popular work entitled, "Love Letters of 'Droopy' and Rozelle," in ten volumes.

That was all. I enjoyed that game of solitaire, Diary. I only wish I knew if it were all true. Maybe I will know some day. But gracious, I must stop, for it is nearly morning, and my arm is so tired and cramped. Good night, Diary!

Our Love

The artist, choosing variously from his pigments,
Does with the deft and loving touch of his brush
Paint a picture.

Each careful stroke alone but color seems,
Separated one from the other,
And caring not that the other is there.
But when the task is done, and beauty
Lies naked there, each stroke then calls
Its fellow-strokes, that all may show
Together that beauty which now is theirs.
So have we long been apart
Yet now are close in bonds of love;
Realizing each that the others' part
Must be a part to us.

Now ere much time has gone its way,
Dissecting our group so dear,
We must beg those classmate bonds
To hold us fast in ties of love.
We play the part of the artist's strokes,
Our love is the picture fair,
To the highest heights our lives will soar
If it's our loves that bear us there.

—"TURTLE."

Football Review—'29

On September the second, about sixty men responded to Coach Barnhill's annual call for football candidates for the season of 1929. In this large number there were only six letter men from the team of 1928, but, despite this handicap, there were many who were to prove their worth before the season had ended.

Every member of the squad then began to prepare himself in the way of training, conditioning, and mental attitude for one of the hardest schedules that a Maroon and White eleven ever faced.

Our first game of the season was played on the 27th of September when the Mountain City team composed of many veterans invaded Bristol seeking to avenge the defeat which they had suffered the year before. Mountain City succeeded in defeating us by a score of 13 to 7.

On the 4th of October the Maroon and White team showed considerably better teamwork than was shown in the opening game of the season and succeeded in fighting the highly-touted Erwin team to a scoreless tie. This was our first game of the year in the Big Five Conference.

The third game of the season was played in Morristown and the Tennesseans, accompanied by a large crowd of cheerers, entered the game in high spirits. The team showed even better form than in the two preceding contests, but this did not keep us from getting a drubbing from the Morristown crew, by a 13 to 7 score. Coach Siler's fighting team won the game by a lone touchdown in the last three minutes of play.

For our next game we journeyed to Johnson City, where we were very fortunate in defeating the Hoosierites by a 14 to 7 score. There were one or two outstanding plays in the game, but on the part of the Maroon and White team the playing was ragged and marked by poor teamwork.

On the 25th of October the great team from Kingsport invaded Bristol, supported by their band and a large group of rooters. They were determined to give the Maroon and White warriors a backset in the season. But the Tennessee team rose to superior heights and by showing the same fight and determination as is always shown against Kingsport succeeded in winning the game by an 8 to 0 score.

In the game at Elizabethton on the 1st of November the Elizabethton team sprang a great surprise in the Big Five Conference by holding Barnhill's boys to a scoreless deadlock. This game which should have been won by the Maroon and White team goes to show what a great part over-confidence plays in athletics.

Our next game was played at home when we met Greeneville High. The game was played on a wet and muddy field and by uncorking their best offense of the season the Tennessee boys won by a 31 to 0 score.

We then began our most strenuous and hardest periods of practice and this was to get primed for the great Virginia High eleven which had lost only two games and had succeeded in winning the rest of their contests.

The game was postponed twice. It was to have been played on the 22nd of November, but weather conditions would not permit, and after the school board met, the game was postponed till Tuesday following. In the meantime Joe Talbert, one of the members of the 1925, '26, '27, '28 teams, died, and in love and respect to our comrade and friend the game was again postponed until a later date.

Finally the day of the game arrived and with the temperature at 18 above zero and with snow and ice on the field the opposing gridgers assembled on Tenneva Field for the annual clash.

The game was hard fought from beginning to end by both teams, but the Virginians without the aid of Captain Feathers (who was proclaimed the best high school back in this section) couldn't find themselves. Led by Captain Smith the Maroon and White team showed the spirit and determination, that was not to be denied and emerged on the long end of a 26 to 0 score.

While our season may not be called a success in all ways it was truly successful in one way. This is true because our team succeeded in winning the championship of the Conference and also of the city.

As winners of the Big Five Conference we were presented with a beautiful plaque which goes to the winner each year. This was presented to Captain Smith by Coach Pedie Jackson of Emory and Henry College who donated the trophy. We were also fortunate in receiving a silver loving cup through the courtesy of Bunting's Drug Store. This cup which is to be given the winner of the game each year was presented to Herman by Mr. Rubins on behalf of Bunting's Drug Store.

Only four men are lost from the squad this year and hopes for a successful season next year, in which Captain-Elect Tom Torbett will lead the Tennessee gridiron warriors, are very high.

The official close of the football season was on the 6th of December when the squad with their girl friends, the faculty, the School Board and City Officials in attendance were given the annual banquet in the School Cafeteria by the P. T. A.

At this banquet many fine toasts were pledged, letters were presented to seventeen players and the manager, and the captain-elect and alternate captain for the season of 1930 were announced.

BOYS' BASKET-BALL TEAM

Basket-ball Review—1929-'30

On the 12th of December the Tennessee Hi quint inaugurated the official basket-ball season. The season proved to be one of the best and most successful seasons that a Tennessee team has had for several years.

The squad which began practice was composed of six of the lettermen from last year's successful team. The fight for positions was hard and on the floor we found for the first time the regular team composed of Capt. Talbert, Poe, Pettigrew, C. Phipps, and Brown, which proved to be the basis of a smoothly working team and which was to reach great heights in the basket-ball history of T. H. S.

There were three pre-season games played. Two of these were with Abingdon, who proved to be a very easy opponent and fell before the sharp-shooters of the Tennessee basketeers by scores of 35-9 and 29-13. The next pre-season game was played with Churchill and most of the game was played by the Imperials who emerged on the long end of a 24 to 12 score.

Then came our first game of the Big Five Conference. We met Johnson City in their own back yard and rolled up a 45 to 28 score before the last whistle had sounded.

We next met Erwin on the 17th of January in our gym and defeated them by a score of 32 to 17.

On January 24th we suffered the first reverse of the season when we journeyed to Kingsport and were defeated by a 28 to 12 score.

Then on Jan. 25th we met Elizabethton in our own gym and after a hard fight we defeated them by a 19 to 14 score.

Our next game was to be played with Johnson City but due to weather conditions and impossibilities of travel, Johnson City forfeited.

We journeyed to Erwin on the 1st of February and the Tennessee sharp-shooters seemed to really try themselves and succeeded in defeating Erwin by a score of 31 to 7.

On the 7th of February the Maroon and White basketeers journeyed to Elizabethton and took them into camp by a score of 27 to 14.

By their ability to hit the basket from all angles of the court and by playing a great defensive ball the Maroon and White boys emerged on the long end of a 52 to 8 score over Boones Creek.

Our next game was played with the Roanoke Fresh team which had made a good record in all preceding games, but the Tennessee team played their usual good game of basket-ball and when the final whistle blew the score was 32 to 14 in favor of T. H. S.

On the 14th of February the climax of the Big Five Conference was reached to decide the championship. In one of the most thrilling and exciting games of the season the formidable and hard fighting Kingsport team defeated the Tennessee crew by a 24 to 21 score and therefore won the Championship of the Big Five Conference for the second time in succession.

The Maroon and White squad the following week journeyed to Johnson City where they entered the Upper East Tennessee Tournament. The team succeeded in defeating Mary Hughes Hi, Hampton and Mosheim, but in the semi-finals were defeated by Glenwood after a hard fought game.

The following Tuesday night the Maroon and White quint staged a comeback by defeating their ancient rivals, Va. Hi, by a score of 30 to 14.

The following night we entered the tournament at Johnson City in which the teams of the Big Five Conference took part. This tournament was won by Elizabethton, Kingsport placed second and Tennessee third. This tournament which was the first of its kind ever sponsored in this section was a great success.

The next Monday night saw the Maroon and White team take the floor with a determination to down Virginia for the second successive time. Their great spirit and attitude were not to be denied and they succeeded in humbling the Virginia quint by a 30 to 18 score.

This game brought to a close one of the most successful seasons that a Maroon and White team has ever gone through and it marked the first time that Tennessee has won the City Championship in basket-ball since 1916.

GIRLS' BASKET-BALL TEAM

Girls' Basket-ball Review

Tennessee High's basket-ball team achieved a record of which the school is exceedingly proud. The season started off with a rush with about sixty girls answering Coach Jack's first call for candidates. The center position vacated by Nannie Edwards of last year's team was ably filled by Embree Slack and the guard position vacated by Dot Peltier was taken care of by Virginia Love. Billie Kensing and "Stumpy" Stepe back at their old guard positions and Captain Nelle Owens and Elsie Davis in their berths at forward, exhibited some fine basket-ball this season. June Smith and Alyne Finley, playing in the majority of the games, also did some brilliant playing.

We opened the season with a bang! On December 7 we defeated Shoemaker Hi, 30 to 15, on our floor. The next games was with Abingdon at Bristol and this team was defeated by Tennessee, 30 to 13. In a return game at Abingdon we smothered them 31 to 10. We next played Churchill on our floor and rolled up 53 points to their 10. We went to Johnson City and tied them in a closely contested battle, 17 to 17.

The following week the Erwin lassies came to Bristol, and Tennessee won the score of 26 to 17. Next we invaded the magic city of Kingsport and licked the Maroon and Gray lassies, 27 to 17. The highly-touted "Betsy Flashers" of Elizabethton invaded our city the next night and were beaten by our team in a hot battle, ending 21 to 19. Playing a rough and thrilling game, the Tennesseans displayed brilliant playing throughout the entire game.

The next week we journeyed to Erwin and brought home a 20 to 12 victory. The first defeat of the season was suffered at Elizabethton. Being sadly off form, our team came out the underdog of a 42 to 10 score. "Give thy thoughts no tongue." The following night we swamped the fast Boones Creek sextette to a 28 to 10 score. The Kingsport lassies toured to Bristol and were given a 36 to 16 licking in a hard fought game.

We entered the tournament in February and had the misfortune of hitting the strong Lamar team and bowed to them to a score of 42 to 46. The Maroon and White team of Tennessee High put up a hard fight, the game requiring an extra three-minute period of play.

We returned to Bristol and met the Virginia High lassies the following week. This was one of the most exciting games of the year, Tennessee shooting the winning goal in the last minute of play, the game ending 20 to 19. We met Virginia again the next week and by the brilliant playing of the Orange and Black sextette we were beaten by the score of 25 to 30. With two more days of hard practice we met the Virginians the following Saturday. By the excellent playing of the Tennessee guards and the accurate shooting of our forwards, we came out on top with a 28 to 17 score, and became the city champions for the fifth consecutive year.

The fast fighting sextette of Tennessee Hi also ended the season with a bang!

(THE CADMEA)

BERTHA JACK, Coach
"Fat Lady"

At the helm of our ship this year, we have been fortunate in having Miss Jack. Her patience and good sportsmanship have guided us through many trials and hardships. She has proven her ability in coaching, leading, and developing one of the best teams ever produced by Tennessee Hi.

NELLE OWENS, Captain
"Snail"

Nelle has led our team through two highly successful seasons as Captain. Being the most accurate crip shooter on our team, she has helped to win many a game for old Tennessee. Nelle always plays an aggressive game and is a mighty cog that will be missed in the 1931 basket-ball machine.

BILLIE KENSINGER
"Billie"

This is "Billie's" last year on the team. She is leaving a reputation that will be hard to be beaten as guard. "Billie" could always be depended upon to block any forward who made an attempt at the goal.

VIRGINIA LOVE
"Jinny"

Playing her first year on the team, Virginia has proved her ability successfully to fill her position as guard. Having proved her true worth and ability to check her forward and recover the ball from the backboard, we expect great things from her next season.

(THE CADMEA)

ALYNE FINLEY, Manager
"Finley"

Alyne, star guard of '28, had the misfortune to be injured and through the first of the season, Tennessee High in turn suffered much from her loss. Serving as manager of our team for the last two seasons, she was always ready to do her part in every way. We couldn't have done without her in the Virginia games.

GERTRUDE STEPPE
"Stumpy"

To "Stumpy," our little guard, we owe much gratitude. Although we know she would dribble—or bust six buttons, it was always with a smile and word for the referee. Will we ever find another "Stumpy?"

JUNE SMITH
"April"

June proved to be the find of the season. In spite of her diminutive size she was always able to help roll up the score. With three years before her there is no stage of perfection she cannot reach.

EMBREE SLACK
"Em"

Embree's ability to get the tip-off and her brilliant offensive work have made her a valuable asset to our team. Having played a conspicuous part in every game, she will be greatly missed next year.

Hamlet

ACT I

SCENE VI—A churchyard. Enter two clowns, with spades (Grave diggers).

FIRST CLOWN—In faith, our profession increases in favor.

SECOND CLOWN—Yea, as royalty decreases in number.

FIRST CLOWN—E'en so. And again, the burden of their bones transfers itself to line our purses withal.

SECOND CLOWN—You speak out o' my grasp. How say you so?

FIRST CLOWN—Why, knave, it reasons thus: In first, they die; hence their bones lose the weight of the flesh. As they die, we dig and, so doing, are justly compensated. Argal, our purse gains fatness as their bones gain leanness.

SECOND CLOWN—Thou'rt right. Hast thou heard that the young Hamlet has joined Caesar's army?

FIRST CLOWN—Why, thou fool, Caesar and his army are gone forever from this world.

SECOND CLOWN—Thou art the fool. Think'st that Prince Hamlet still lives? Sharpen thy wits, else I'll think thee as the suppliers of thy trade.

FIRST CLOWN—But we dig for others than the crazy Prince?

SECOND CLOWN—In truth.

We dig for Laertes, so young and bold,
We dig for the King, so withered and old,
We dig for the queen, who married two fold,
We dig for all four since their bones have grown cold.

FIRST CLOWN—I do remember the queerness of young Hamlet when he was last our guest.

SECOND CLOWN—As he was struck dumb by the queerness of death?

FIRST CLOWN—E'en so, and who knows but that someone will some day reason the same with his bony structure. I can see it now: Alas, poor Hamlet! Zounds, but I knew the boy well: a fellow of solemn bearing, whose kindness hath oft served me well. Now hold I him powerless. Here stuck those eyes which struck the weaker ones with wonder; here dangled a nose, which constantly he followed; and here those lips which proclaimed his sadness.

SECOND CLOWN—Come, fool, cease thy babbling and about we to work, or methinks we'll lose our jobs and our stomachs feel the effect of it.—(Exeunt)

If Shakespeare had written Scene VI in Act V of his Hamlet, "Turtle" thinks this is what it would have been. What do you think?

“Looking Backward”

Track—'29

When the first call was made for track candidates in the spring of '29 it was a fine group of athletes who answered the call. With such a promising number, Coach set about to develop a team which was capable of representing Tennessee High.

The first track meet was one in which only the candidates who were out for track took part. This meet was sponsored by the Junior Class. This proved to be a financial success and also showed the capabilities of the track candidates. Harry Weiler, through his splendid efforts, won for himself the distinction of being high-point man.

After much conditioning and training we journeyed to Kingsport where there was to be a meet between members of the Big Five Conference. The meet was won by Kingsport who showed superiority over the other schools in almost every department. Tennessee tied with Johnson City for third place.

Our loss of the meet at Kingsport did not make the members of the team disheartened and a strong comeback was made when we defeated our ancient rivals $86\frac{1}{2}$ to $13\frac{1}{2}$ in the first meet between the local schools.

Although we cannot call the track season such a great success we hope that the future track teams of T. H. S. will win the honors which they deserve.

GEOMETRY FOR BEGINNERS

No one is square in an eternal triangle.
Your angle is always the right angle.
Parallel lines never meet, and if they did they probably wouldn't speak.

OLD GENTLEMAN—"Mr. Tyler, I believe? My grandson goes to school here."
MT. T.—"O yes, he went to your funeral last week. I gave him a withdrawal."

ROGER—"What caused the collision today?"
TURTLE—"Two motorists after the same pedestrians."

HIS WIFE (reading)—"It says here that they found a long-legged sheep in the Andes that can run 40 miles an hour."
HER HUSBY—"Well, it would take a lamb like that to follow Mary nowadays."

MR. WILLIAMS—"What are glaciers?"
TOM TORBETT—"Guys that fix windows when they are broken."

ROGER—"What is the name of the piece the orchestra is playing?"
H. S. FRIEND—"Go Feather Your Nest."
ROGER—"You go jump in the lake. I simply asked you a civil question."

MISS MOOMAW—"What is steel wool?"
"STUMPY"—"I think it's the fleece of a hydraulic ram."

LADY (to boy)—"My dear, does your father know you smoke?"
"PEACHY" MC.—"Madam, does your husband know you speak to strange men?"

"He was born early in life in Franklin County," says a South Carolina newspaper. That is the only correct way to be born. Those who are born late in life become settled in their habits, and make it difficult for their parents to please them with the ordinary amusements of childhood.

Those were the days—when men were men and women—were glad of it!

ELSIE—"Is Johnnie a nice boy?"
MARY DEANE—"No, dear, you'll like him."

MISS OWEN—"Alfred, how many times have I told you to be here on time?"
ALFRED K.—"I thought you were keeping score."

"STUMPY"—"I think it's a shame Shakespeare wasn't born in London."
MRS. B.—"Why?"
"STUMPY"—"I said so on exam."

Epilogue

Thus far with rough and all-unable pen,
We bending authors have pursued our story,
In little room confining mighty men.
Mangling by starts the full course of their glory;
Small time but in that small most greatly lived
The stars of this our world;
By these a world's great play has been achieved,
Which here upon this stage we've shown, and for their sake
In your fair minds let this, our work acceptance take.

And so we lay down our pens with a sigh. Our task is ended, our Annual is completed, our Senior year draws to a close. We have tried to produce the 1930 CADMEA with loyalty to our slogan:

"The priceless ingredient of every product is the honor and integrity of its maker."

We cannot say that the work has been easy, but we wish we had the power to tell you how much this labor of love has meant to us, how treasured in our hearts will be the memory of even the hard times we have had.

It is no small task to live up to the rich legacy of splendid traditions left to Tennessee High by the founder of our Club, Miss Margaret Nininger. To her goes our warmest, our deepest gratitude, because she built on the firm foundations of truth and beauty and loyalty. We can never forget the knights, holding high the shield of B. T. H. S. May we keep that shield always undishonored! Our motto is "Noblesse oblige."

From the 1927 CADMEA float forward to us the echoes of Tennyson's Challenge:

"O, young Mariner,
Down to the haven,
Call your companions,
Launch your vessel,
And, ere it vanishes
Over the margin,
After it, follow it,
Follow the Gleam."
